HONGKONG, NOVEMBER 25TH, 1889. THE reports of the Commissioners of Customs at Canton, Kowloon, and Lappa, on the opium trade for the March quarter of the present year, suggest that in South China smuggling still extensively prevails. After the remarkable judgment given by the Su preme Court on Friday in the case of Tang MAN and others, appellants, v. BREM BE, respondent, it is likely to still more extensively prevail. The opium in question in that case, according to the evidence, consisted of the contents of a number of chests which had been broken up for convenience of carriage to the Opium Farmer's establishment at Mongkok. It is held by the Supreme Court that this is not an infringement of section 6 of Ordinance 22 of 1887 which probibits the possession of opium in quantities less than one chest. The ruling of the Court would apply equally to a quantity of opinm exceeding that contained in one chest, packed up in small parcels with a view to being emuggled into China. The amugglers, therefore have henceforth nothing to fear from the Police of Hongkong, and have only their ancient enemies the revenue officers of China to deal with. Thus one of the principal objects of the Ordinance is defeated and the Government is for the time being rendered unable to carry out in its integrity its engagement towards China with reference to the prevention of the smuggling of opium from this colony. The Government may perhaps think it worth while to carry the case by appeal to the in the raw state, either by sale or otherwise, Privy Council, but the simplest plan would be to pass at once a short amending Ordinance curing the delect in the principal measure which has now been discovered, assuming the judgment of the Court to be correct The judgment is certainly not based on the principle that interpretatio flonda set ut res magis valeat quam perent. What is evident. ly meant by the Ordinance by quantities less than one chest is quantities less than one unbroken chest. If for any reason it were deemed desirable to prevent the importation. of cloth in lengths of less than twenty yards it could not be held in common sense, though from Chinking. it might be according to the judgment of the Supreme Court, that a length of twenty yards cut up into smaller lengths would still be a length of twenty yards. A chest of opium divided up into smaller quentities is held by the Court to be still a chest, notwithstanding the definition that "chest of opium means the package, with the opium therein, such as is usually imported by merchants in the Colony." sons interested in smuggling will doubtless

Mr. Caldwell said he assumed that with the evidence before him his Worship would hold that there was a sufficiently prima facie case to justify Criminal Sessions, and that being the case he was instructed to reserve the prisoner's defence. There was one objection, however, which he was that the warrant under which Sergeant Rocustody in Japanese territory was one made, as he was instructed and believed, in the absence of itself, as his Worship would see, was directed of in almost the first line to Sergeant William Robertson, and in the body of the warrant it ordered Sergeant Robertson, who was an officer ing to all accounts, has not yet been signed the Court his Worship had jurisdiction over him. His Worship would remember that Sergeant Robertson had stated very clearly in crossexamination the steps which were taken the British authorities, namely Her Majesty Minister in Tokyo and Her Majesty's Consul in Kobe, to obtain through the Japanese Government the arrest of the prisoner. That was to say, the British authorities exerted themselves to obtain the arrest of this prisoner; and as to that point he was instructed to say that the prisoner denied being a British subject, and, not being British subject, according to his contentien the Britishauthorities were not justified in taking any measures to obtain his arrest. As to the merits of the case, he asked leave to reserve the defence on The prisoner was then committed for trial at

Each of the witnesses had given evidence of a most conflicting nature, not merely on point of detail but on really material points. Kindness is always expected in a nurse, but when life is at stake professional skill is imperative: Trained nurses are an absolute necessity. Such nurses are paid in Australia, salaries from £35 and upwards per anuum. Every ward has a nurse for night duty and usually two for day duty, the night nurses being specially experienced and reliable. Over the staff of nurses, a chief nurse is placed, who frequently visits the wards during the day, and also through the night, to know that all duties are efficiently carried out. 9th November On Saturday night last a stiff northeast wind which had during the day made itself felt on the racecourse, brought with it a very fine sleet, and on Sunday snow todall day with a cold wind. Both on Monday and Tuesday the weather was very bleak, with evercast sky; although the san shone a little on the afternoon of Tuesday. The falling barometer of Saturday was indicative of change, but it was not anticipated that the cold snap which threatened all day would have been severe. The snow, damp, and fog of the first part of the week were rather unusual in this clear climate. The steamers have not found the river so mavigable as at first anticipated. The narrowness of the channel, which is described as being simply a gulter, renders it not only impossible for ateamers to pass each other without one or both going ashore, but also, in the absence of any such contingency, for vessels to come and go we hout difficulty and delay. The Tientsin Reach is worse than any other part of the river, soundings of five feet and six feet having been obtained each side of un incoming steamer drawing 9ft. This was foreseen and might have been expected. The protest, however, will most probably reach the Yamen through the ministers opposed to the ratification of the Convention acting individually for their respective nationals. Each minister feels he has a duty to perform towards his Government or his nationals. If it be true that the hands of the British and Russian Ministers are tied by their governments, then the fault does not lie at their doors. They are doubtless keeping their governments informed on the subject. Has the convention been altered in any one particular? If any change has taken place it has been exclusively with regard to Government telegrams, which are now to go free, and this was the surrender the cable companies were prepared to make. We are also told that H.E. the Russian Minister has undertaken to use his influence to get the Foreign Ministers in Peking to approve of the convention. that Mr. Hillier, in his excellent list of the Higher Metropolitan and Provincial authorities does not give us the genealogy of some of the more preminent officials, especially, as in the present case, when a relationship exists with the Imperial family. In the work in question the Prince is simply given as I Kwang. As the Seventh and Sixth Princes are termed & Heom and I Hern respectively, it is natural to infer that there exists if not a brotherly at least a cousinly relationship. The Prince before his elevation to his present rank was a Beileih. His father was a pan shih to jim of the Hami or Uliasutal region and was degraded I believe for misconduct. The present Prince was raised to his princedom by an edict, the Cabinet in its recommendation having fallen into the error of creating him a Prince, fong, instead of k'ai fu, a returning to the rank of Prince. NOW ON SALE. IMPERIAL QUARTO. IN NGLISH AND CHINESE necessary, communication with the Undersigned DICTIONARY.

WITH THE PUNTI AND MANDARIN

PRONUNCIATION. An Angle Chinese Dictionary, published at the Daily Press Office, Hongkong. For comprehensiveness and practical service this Work stands unrivalled. All the new words which the Chinese have of late years been compelled to coin to express the numerous objects in machinery, photography, telegraphy, and in science generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are per don here given in extenso. Each and every word is fully illustrated and explained, forming exercises for students of a most instructive nature. Both the Court and Punti pronunciations are given the accents being carefully marked on the best principle hitherto attained. The typography displays the success of an attempt to make the Chinese and English type correspond in the size of body, thereby effecting a vast economy of space, achieving a clearness not previously attained, and dispensing with those vast margins and vacant spaces which have heretofore characterized Chinese publications. To illustrate the vast scope of the work the following facts are submitted for consideration :--Chalmers' Vocabulary contains about 16.000 Chinese characters, and Medhurst's English and Chinese Dictionary about 100,000, whilst this work contains more than 50,000 English words, and upwards of 600,000 Chinese characters. Again, despite all the grammars and other elementary works as yet published, the student of this difficult language absolutely fequires examples to display the various appli-cations and equivalents of different words which have one general meaning. Of these examples this work contains more than five times as many as any other Dictionary hitheric pub-For practical purposes the arrangement of the work is to complete, that a reference to its pages enables a person who understands English to communicate effectively with natives who Owners, will be RESPONSIBLE for any understand nothing but Chinese. In this respect the Crows the work will be found indispensable to all Europeans residing in China and to the natives themselves it explains subjects fully with which very few indeed of them are perfectly acquainted. To parties resident in England and interested in China it cannot but be invaluable occasion-
